CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of Problem

Reading is an activity that purposed to get information from content of text and comperhend the meaning of text. Reading comprehension means understanding what have been read. In field, reading is one of learning process in the school. In learning process at school, the students usually do the reading activity.

In the school, the student is recommended to have many kinds of skill. A skill will help them to be master in one thing. With skill they can show their ability to another people which the others don't have. A skill can change the students be active and can be different with the others.

The writer is the opinion that among the four language skills, reading skill is one of the language skills which is the most dominant because this language skill is the first step in the process of learning language.

According to Oxford Learner's Pocket Dictionary (1995:343) reading is (a) look at and understand (something written or printed) (b) say aloud the words of (a book, etc). Similar opinion is also stated by Glendinning and Holmstrom (2010 : 6), study reading is for students who have to use English textbooks, reference material and other sources, in print or online, for study purposes.

Based on the definition above, it is absolutely study reading is look at and understanding a book, reference material an other sources in print or online.

Reading is one of major skill involved in language learning. Reading purposes: it is important to get ecquainted with the various purposes of reading because the reading purpose obviously influences the reading process in certain aspects.

William Grabe and Fredricka (2002:13) says, “in general, the purpose of reading is classified into:

1. Reading to search for simple information.
2. Reading to skim quickly.
3. Reading to learn from the texts.
4. Reading to integrate information.
5. Reading to write (or search for information needed for writing)
6. Reading to critique texts.
7. Reading for general comprehension.

But the purpose in my thesis are: the first reading to search for simple information, the second reading to learn from texts and the last reading for general information.

The first purpose is reading to search for simple information, according to William and Fredricka (2002:13) reading to search for simple information is a common reading ability, though some researchers see it as a relatively independent cognitive process. It is used so often in reading tasks that it is probably best seen as a type of reading ability. In reading to search, we typically scan the text for a specific piece of information or a specific word.

The second purpose is reading to learn from text, reading to learn typically occurs in academic and professional contexts in which a person needs to learn a considerable amount of information from the text. It requires abilities to remember main ideas as well as a number of details that elaborate the main and supporting ideas in the text, recognize and build rhetorical frames that organize the information in the text and link the text to the reader's knowledge base.

The last purpose is reading for general comprehension, it is the most basic purpose for reading. When accomplished by a skilled fluent reader, it requires very rapid and automatic processing of words, strong skills in forming a general meaning representation of main ideas, and efficient coordination of many processes under very limited time constraints.

Based on the statement above reading has some purposes. Reading is to know the contents of text or to search for simple information and reading for general comprehension.

Reading is typically an individual activity. Reading is one of the language skills. Cox, Carole (1999:267) stated, “Reading is primarily the construction of meaning”.

Reading is one of language skills, it is very important to us to learn reading because through reading will increase our knowledge. It means that reader must absolutely comprehend the content of reading text.

According to Glendinning and Holmstrom (2010 : 6), study reading is for students who have to use English textbooks, reference material and other sources, in print or online, for study purposes.

Based on the definition above, it is absolutely known that one of the components relating with reading is text. There are a lot of text forms in English in the amount of more or less than ten text forms. The students get difficulties in learning; moreover when reading text from in oral. Generally, the student difficult to understand content of the text, and get confused when they answer the task based on the text after they read.

Active reading approach is the roles of the teacher, the teacher using active reading approach in learning process in order to students get to read enthusiastically in class, we need to work to create interest in the topic and task.

According to Geoff Barton (2010 : 75), Directed Activities Related to Texts (DARTs) are more active ways of getting pupils to process and respond to texts. Pupils like them because they resemble games and puzzles. They work well as pair or group activities. They encourage an exploratory approach, rather than a simple right or wrong answer.

Active reading approach or DARTs fall in two main categories:

Reconstruction Activities:

- Text completion (coze)
- Diagram completion
- Table completion
- Completion activities with disorganised text
- Prediction

Analysis activities:

- Underlining or highlighting
- Labelling
- Segmenting
- Diagrammatic representation
- Tabular representation

In learning and teaching activity especially in English teaching the suitable method and approach are important in the teaching process. Because of that, before learning and teaching process takes place, the teacher must prepare a method that will be presented to the students and approach is needed in learning and teaching activity, so it can improve the students achievement.

Reading is a complex process. With the development of research in the field of psychologists, applied linguistics and discourse linguistics, the discussion about reading comprehension is becoming complicated.

Reading is the process of deriving meaning from text. For the majority of readers, this process involves decoding written text. Understanding text is determined by the purposes for reading, the context, the nature of the text, and the readers' strategies and knowledge. (Frederick: 2006)

Based on the declaration above, it is really know that reading is an activity to understand the meaning.

Minister education and culture of the republic of Indonesia states that the aims of teaching English area follows:

1. Effective reading ability
2. Effective writing ability
3. Effective speaking ability
4. Effective listening ability

Reading is one of the four language skill constitutes as a process to obtain much information and to get meaning from written material. (Al-Khulli, 1976:69)

Based on the explanation above, reading is one of the school subject and its one of the four language skill. Everyone should be realize that the ability to read is very important since it's a tool for human beings to enlarge their knowledge, especially the ability to reading foreign language like English.

In English lesson, the students usually do the reading activity. They are reading the text. The text is often taken from genre, such as narrative text, descriptive text, report text, procedure text, etc. In general, in this case after read the students are not able to understand the text well. So, the teacher has to combine it with active reading approach.

Based on that explanation above, the writer would like to examine the influence of using active reading approach on the students' comprehension in reading English text.
