Additional comments along the following lines: originality, literature review, methodology, evaluation of results, research implications, quality of communication, etc.:

It is a well-written text, coherent and with academic arguments in many of its sections. However, there are ideas that seem to generalize some points of view; for example, it is suggested to review expressions such as "This response to mathematics teaching devices demonstrates that it has met effective standards and can be used in schools with different certification status", no evidence of this was noted

It is complex to understand the paper in relation to formative interests in mathematics and even more so when they have such a religious emphasis. For example, in the expression "Mathematical learning tools integrated with Quranic values can improve the religious spirituality and mathematical attitudes of students" it is not possible to show how an improvement in mathematical attitudes is achieved and how these attitudes favor the learning of thereof.

Dear Dr Authors,

The decision for your paper is: accept the paper if all the requested changes are made

You need to do the following and submit the paper by email by 20th February 2020 for publication in the January 2020 issue.

Editor's Note

1. Format the paper strictly according to the template (attached).
2. Follow APA style strictly for the references. References must strictly follow APA otherwise publication will be delayed.
<http://www.apastyle.org/>
http://student.ucol.ac.nz/library/onlineresources/Documents/APA\_guide\_2015.pdf
3. Check if references are mentioned in the text (and vice-versa). The paper must have at least 25 references. Failure to correct the references will delay the review process. Also include recent papers (2015-2019) in the references (if need be). Any non-English words must have their equivalent inside square brackets [ ].
4. Address all the concerns of the reviewers, as far as appropriate.
5. Mention the doi of each reference where available.
  - a. Go to <http://search.crossref.org/>
  - b. Copy and paste the title of the paper in the search box
  - c. Press the Enter key.
  - d. Copy and paste the doi back to the paper (into the reference section) if one is available. DOI may not be available for some of the references. This is fine.
  - e. There are two ways you can write the doi (1) doi:10.1037/a0028240 or (2) <http://dx.doi.org/10.1037/a0028240>
6. Prepare a separate word document to indicate the changes that were made as a result of EACH reviewer's comments and the editor's notes. This is compulsory. The revised paper will not be considered without this. The response to each reviewers' comments must be detailed preferably in a table.
7. Paper must be at least 5500 words (inclusive of references).
8. The abstract must be between 175-250 words. The abstract must preferably be in one paragraph only.
9. The conclusion must be between 175-300 words. One or two paragraphs is preferred but not compulsory. Avoid numbering in conclusion.
10. You are strongly advised to use Grammarly to check your paper. Create an account in Grammarly.com and upload your paper. You can use the free version. It will catch the obvious mistakes (if any). You should decide what to change and what to keep at it is (most alerts are just suggestions which could be ignored). You also have a MS Word add-in for Grammarly. It is attached to this email. You can install it and then open MS Word. You will see a new item in the menu. You will need to login with your Grammarly account credentials to access the services.

A final fast-track review will be made before the final decision to publish is taken. Failure to make the requested changes will delay the publication of the paper.

If you have any queries, please let us know.
