CHAPTER V
CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter discussed the conclusions of the researchers' findings and the submission of suggestions by the researcher.

5.1 Conclusion

Based on the results of this research, it's show that students' speaking skills have increased significantly after using the Speak Pal application in the material of giving and receiving compliments. Before using the application, many students showed signs of lack of confidence, feeling anxious when they started speaking. However, after the application of Speak Pal, students showed a clear increase in speaking fluency and the ability to express compliments more effectively. This proves that this application can provide significant support in the process of learning speaking skills.

Statistical analysis conducted showed a significant influence of the use of the Speak Pal application on students' speaking skills. The application of this application in the context of giving and receiving compliments helps students not only to improve their speaking skills, but also in building positive social interactions. The test results showed that students who used Speak Pal were able to communicate more confidently and effectively, especially in the context of giving compliments, which is an important skill in communication.

In addition, this study also found that the use of the Speak Pal application contributed to increasing students' confidence in speaking skills. Many students said that after using Speak Pal, they felt more comfortable and confident when they had to speak in front of others. This increase in confidence is very important, in order to make students to be more active and comfortable in participating in class discussions and other social situations.

5.2  Suggestion

Based on the conclusions drawn by the researchers, there are several suggestions that can be given:

1. For Further Research

    Further research is needed to compare the effectiveness of Speak Pal with other speaking learning apps, such as Duolingo or Rosetta Stone. This could provide insight into the strengths and weaknesses of each app in improving students' speaking skills.

2. For English Teachers

    Teachers can effectively integrate Speak Pal into their teaching activities, utilizing it as a valuable medium to enhance the instruction of speaking skills, while also encouraging students to actively engage with this application outside the classroom for independent practice, thereby enabling them to track their progress over time and further develop their oral communication abilities.
