ABSTRACT

Maftuh Musyadad Syirodj Arrusy

1808103086. Developing web-based digital media for learning english in junior high school

This study aims to develop a website as an online learning media for ninth-grade junior high school students in response to the growing need for technology integration in education. In the 21st-century learning context, students are expected to be more active, independent, and proficient in using digital resources, yet many teachers still rely on conventional methods with limited use of technology. To address this gap, the study employs a Research and Development (R&D) method using the ADDIE model, in this research which only consists of : Analysis, Design, Development. Data were collected through interviews with English teachers and ninth-grade students to identify learning needs and guide the development process. The outcome of this research is a prototype online learning website that includes instructional materials, exercises, and interactive features designed to enhance student engagement and understanding. This website is expected to support a more innovative and effective learning experience aligned with modern educational demands.

DEDICATION

This thesis is dedicated to two of the most extraordinary women in my life:

To my mother, thank you for your unconditional love, strength, and unwavering support. You have been my guiding light, constantly reminding me of the importance of perseverance, humility, and integrity. Your sacrifices and endless encouragement have shaped the person I am today. I am deeply grateful for every moment you stood by me, even when the path was uncertain.

To my grandmother, whose wisdom, warmth, and gentle presence have always given me comfort and strength. Your prayers, and quiet resilience have been a source of inspiration throughout my life. You have taught me the value of patience, kindness, and faith in times of difficulty.
